INFORMATION INTO KNOWLEDGE AND THEN TO WISDOM
Many important foundations were laid in 2013 which will reach fruition in 2014 and 2015. These will provide the basis for the realignment of our governance structure and improve our capacity for providing planners with knowledge and best practices.

In many respects, 2013 was an excellent year for sharing planning knowledge and best practices. With membership and university accreditation matters no longer a central focus of CIP, we have been working closely with the professional planning institutes across Canada to clarify the role and mandate of the national institute and to put in place new structures of governance and staffing arrangements.

The Planning Institute of British Columbia in partnership with CIP hosted a memorable national conference in Vancouver that had the theme “INFUSE” (see p. 14). The conference committee worked hard to provide attendees with great keynotes, ‘breakout’ sessions and professional education workshops.

Multi-media was a prominent part of the conference, which featured a unique series of sessions providing documentaries about community and regional issues. There was also an inventive ‘Gala Event’ rather than a traditional sit-down dinner which offered opportunities to socialize, enjoy wonderful food, take in live music... and participate in interactive social media. As Chair of the Cultural and Social Committee, I was very impressed by the hard work of the primarily young planners who volunteered many, many hours to mount this and other cultural and social events at the conference. Clearly one of the best ways for planners to share and find planning knowledge and best practices is through the CIP website, which began work on a major overhaul in summer 2013. I am confident that it will be an excellent resource for planners across Canada and a great venue to contribute content.

There were so many opportunities for me to meet with members across Canada as I attended the annual conferences of the Ontario Professional Planners Institute, the Alberta Professional Planners Institute and l’Ordre des Urbanistes du Québec. I also was honoured to be invited to be the keynote speaker at the World Town Planning Day event organized by the Manitoba Professional Planners Institute in Winnipeg last November.

In November, we finalized our new committee structures. These will be chaired and appointed by CIP staff and will provide you as a member of CIP an opportunity to be involved as a committee member. We anticipate that they will be appointed in 2014 and 2015 with all committees having a complete membership in 2015. The committees are the:

- International Initiatives Advisory Committee,
- Membership Services Advisory Committee,
- Professional Development Committee, and
- National Initiatives Advisory Committee (with sub-committees on Healthy Communities, Climate Change and Indigenous People’s Planning).

We have maintained our relationships with international organizations and continued our work with the Global Planners Network, the Commonwealth Association of Planners, the American Planning Institute, the Royal Town Planning Institute, and the Caribbean Planners Association.

In closing, I want to thank CIP staff and members of National Council for all your hard work focused on advancing the planning profession and planning in Canada. I also appreciate the importance of working on these objectives in partnership with the professional planning institutes across Canada.

2013 was a busy and exciting year at CIP. Successful efforts were made to fill CIP office vacancies based on a restructuring of staff positions as recommended by Performance Management Consultants Ltd. of Ottawa. The consultant’s review found that the CIP office was under-staffed and that existing personnel were being expected to fill combinations of roles that needed to be better distributed across an increased staff complement. The national headquarters also saw significant renovations to modernize the office space and accommodate new staff. The full staff complement is represented in the following organizational chart.

I am particularly grateful for the time, energy, and creativity CIP staff have invested in the two major IT projects that were started this year. The member database and its related services to the planning institutes, as well as CIP’s website are being completely redesigned to better refine and improve upon the products and the services which we offer to our members in today’s planning environment.

In 2013, CIP embarked upon the necessary task of redefining its governance and services structures, under the new Canada Not-for-Profit Corporations Act. This exploration of the needs of the profession as well as the redirection of CIP’s future could not have been possible without the participation and open dialogue from members of the provincial institutes and CIP Council. I look forward to leading CIP in the next phase of its Strategic Plan under these new structures as the national institute renews itself to best serve planners and the planning profession in Canada.

The College of Fellows consists of planners who have been elected as a Fellow of the Canadian Institute of Planners. This honour, and with it the right to be designated a Fellow of the Canadian Institute of Planners (FCIP), recognizes their exemplary contribution to Canadian planning and society. With the honour comes both the recognition of and responsibility for mentoring.

This year, three new Fellows will join the College – David Gordon, FCIP, RPP, AICP in Ontario; Harry Harker, FCIP, RPP in Alberta; and Richard White, FCIP, RPP in British Columbia. The three new Fellows share an extraordinary lifelong commitment to mentorship and community empowerment. David as the head of the planning program at Queen’s University, mentoring 30+ new planners each year, Harry through his career in municipalities, particularly in mentoring young planners and Richard through his long career in Vancouver fostering the values of trust and respect as foundational elements of planning.

This is my last year as Chair. I would recommend volunteering in any way with CIP as a great way to meet interesting people and contribute to the profession. I want to thank all those Fellows who made this an interesting and gratifying experience for me.

I will conclude my report, and my tenure, with a short story. Each year the College awards a $4,000 travel scholarship to a planning student. The award is to be used for travel with a specific purpose related to planning and for the documentation of the study trip.

In April, 2014 I had the pleasure of calling Riannon McVay, a Dalhousie University student, to let her know that the College would fund her study trip to Riga, Latvia (the 2014 European Cultural Capital), to investigate the factors that have led to its success. She contacted her new employer, the Regional Municipality of Wilton, Saskatchewan, who immediately congratulated her and agreed to delay her first day on the job so she could make the trip.

The 2014 College of Fellows Travel Scholarship is being given in honour of Earl Levin, FCIP who passed away in March 2014 at the age of 93. Early in his career Earl worked in Saskatoon, about 250 km down Highway 16 from Wilton. He was the pioneer of professional planning in this part of Canada in the late 1940’s and mentored hundreds of planners in his career. Riannon will continue this planning story, in Saskatchewan and elsewhere, for perhaps another 40 years in her career. This connection somehow, in my mind, nicely rounds out a century of progress and demonstrates the alchemy of planning - that magical process that transmutes information into knowledge, and then to wisdom.

BOB LEHMAN, FCIP, RPP
Chair, College of Fellows
The mandate of ACUPP (Association of Canadian University Planning Programs) is to promote excellence in planning education, research and practice by:

- Exchanging information concerning curriculum design, pedagogic methods and activities
- Facilitating collaborative teaching and research
- Promoting student exchanges and fieldtrips
- Promoting scholarly research on planning in Canada
- Providing opportunities for students and faculty to work along with professional planners, community organizations and other stakeholders on current planning issues and projects
- Providing informed comment on the academic accreditation criteria and procedures that are administered by professional associations to ensure that these are appropriate, effective and fair; and
- Facilitating international collaboration in planning education, research and practice

ACUPP programs offer Planning education at the undergraduate, master’s and doctoral levels of study. In 2013, ACUPP membership included representation from 18 universities and 32 Planning degree programs. Of these, 30 degree programs are accredited by the CIP and its partner institutes, and 2 programs were in the process of seeking accreditation. ACUPP members contribute articles based on their research interests to the CIP-ACUPP’s research journal, Canadian Planning and Policy, and to Plan Canada. ACUPP scholars are also well represented in numerous international academic publications, and they are regular contributors to annual conferences of CIP and its partner institutes.

In 2013, approximately 780 students were enrolled in ACUPP Planning programs. Of that number, about 45% of these students were undergraduates, 52% were in master’s-level programs, and another 3% studied in doctoral programs. These numbers are quite encouraging and indicate stability for all programs as well as significant growth in several ACUPP programs. Many ACUPP Planning programs have hired new faculty to replace colleagues who have retired or otherwise left for other opportunities. This is encouraging, given the fiscal pressures that have been experienced by Canadian universities.

More information about ACUPP may be found at our website: www.acupp-apucu.uwaterloo.ca.

MARK SEASONS, FCIP, RPP
ACUPP Representative
I have had the opportunity and pleasure to engage with students, academics, and planners from across Canada over the past year as the Student Representative to CIP Council. To further strengthen relationships between CIP, the Canadian Association of Planning Students (CAPS), Provincial Affiliate Student Representatives, and Canadian planning students at large, I have attended the following Conferences, Events, Meetings, and visited Planning Schools from across Canada:

- CIP/PIBC Annual Conference - Vancouver, Summer 2013
- OPPI Annual Conference - London, Fall 2013
- OPPI Student Delegate AGM - Toronto, Fall 2013
- University of Guelph visit with George Liu OPPI Student Delegate, Fall 2013
- Joint UBC SFU PIBC Panel Discussion - Vancouver, Fall 2013
- CIP Council Meeting - Ottawa, Winter 2014
- University of Manitoba’s Planning School visit with CIP Board Member Valdene Lawson - Winnipeg, Winter 2014
- CIP Meeting - Winnipeg, Winter 2014
- CAPS-ACÉAU Conference - Toronto, Winter 2014
- CIP Council Meeting - Toronto, Winter 2014
- SHIFT-Resilience Dalhousie School of Planning Conference - Halifax, Winter 2014

During my campaign for Student Rep I launched the blog www.DialogueforInnovation.com to connect with students and provide links and information relevant to existing and incoming planning students. I also worked with CIP Staff to revamp the Plan2Plan newsletter as a blog, which will be re-launched in 2014.

I created the @CIPstudentRep Twitter account, and the email account CIPstudentRep@gmail.com which will be passed onto the next Student Representative to increase institutional memory for the Student Representative position. Along with being active on social media during my term, I write Plan Canada’s quarterly Learning Curve column. Additionally, I am an active board member on the Planning Student Trust Fund. Mark Seasons, FCIP, RPP and I have co-created the CIP Student and Academic Engagement Committee to identify options for CIP’s future student and academic engagement via a report that will be submitted to CIP prior to the completion of my term as CIP Student Rep.

In conclusion, I am looking forward to meeting fellow planners at PIBC’s 2014 BC Land Summit in May in Vancouver and CIP/API’s People Matter Conference in Fredericton in July 2014.

The Plan Canada Editorial Board started off the New Year with the tasks of examining Canada’s selection of urban-focused magazines, such as Spacing, Urbanité, the Canadian Journal of Urban Research (CJUR), APPI’s Planning Journal, etc. to see what could be learnt from them and identify Plan Canada’s positioning and relevance. The exercise highlighted the journal’s unique role as Canada’s only national publication focused on the planning profession and set the tone for the year ahead. The Journal set out to select articles on timely issues relevant to 2013 such as Indigenous planning, climate change, urban housing, as well as public engagement.

A major goal for 2013 was the creation of the special themed summer issue on Indigenous Planning, prepared in collaboration with the Indigenous Peoples Planning Subcommittee. The issue focused on planning practices and directions of Canada’s indigenous communities.

After a three year term as Chair of the Editorial Board, Michael Dudley, MCIP signed off the fall issue of Plan Canada with a thought-provoking letter inspired from the devastating events that took place at Lac-Mégantic, Québec and High River, Alberta on the urgent need for planners, communities and governments to collaboratively develop and implement disaster mitigation planning practices.

The winter issue showcased the Winners of the 2013 Great Places in Canada contest as well as a wonderful tribute piece to Christine Helm’s 25 years of service with CIP.

The Editorial Board welcomed Barbara Myers, MCIP, RPP of Number TEN Architectural Group as their new Chair in November 2013.

Plan Canada recognizes planners who have contributed outstanding content to the publication, through the Plan Canada Award. The 2013 winners of the award are:

FEATURE ARTICLE OF THE YEAR
“A Tale of Two Suburbs: The Physical Plan and its Implications for Active Transportation” by Jeffrey Ward, MCIP, LPP

SHORT ARTICLE OF THE YEAR
“Planning vs. Human Rights? The Case of Minimum Separation Distances” by Lilith Finkler, PhD
2013 was a year of renewing relationships and approaches to CIP’s national and international priorities, flowing from the 2012-2015 Strategic Plan and a subsequent organizational review. A new organizational model was developed to refine the relationships between CIP Council, staff, committee volunteers and the membership. Despite the reorganization, a great deal of work was accomplished by volunteers and staff under a number of key planning themes.

NATIONAL INITIATIVES

HEALTHY COMMUNITIES
CIP remains a key partner in the Healthy Canada by Design CLASP initiative, now in its fourth year. A highlight for the year was the commissioning of a high-level survey of planners across Canada to compare the legislative, administrative and policy frameworks that support the creation of healthy communities. The December 2013 report was disseminated through the CIP website and the Healthy Canada by Design blog.

The CIP Healthy Communities Subcommittee also began working towards preparing workshops and panel sessions for the 2014 CIP|API People Matter Conference to:

1. Highlight the planning resources that have been developed through the CLASP initiative;
2. Strengthen the links between planning and health faculties;
3. Demonstrate emerging planning tools such as the Health Impact Assessment; and
4. Develop a national agenda and position statement for promoting healthy community outcomes through planning.

CIP continues to work with external health stakeholders including the Canadian Institutes of Health Research, the Canadian Council of Social Determinants of Health and the Public Health Agency of Canada’s Age-Friendly Communities Initiative.

CLIMATE CHANGE
In 2013, the Climate Change Subcommittee worked on two main initiatives. The first involved collecting national and international resources to develop a library of best practices in climate change adaptation, which will be featured on the new CIP website. The second initiative was a series of joint workshops involving CIP, the Federation of Canadian Municipalities, Engineers Canada, the International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives (ICLEI), and the Institute for Catastrophic Loss Reduction. The workshop series sought to find better ways of collaborating on climate change adaptation/mitigation across the professions.

INDIGENOUS PEOPLES’ PLANNING
Since 2003, the Indigenous Peoples Planning Subcommittee (IPPC) has worked to build awareness, capacity and support for Indigenous community planning across Canada. In 2013, the IPPC designed a special issue of Plan Canada (Vol. 53 No. 2) on Indigenous community development and planning, which was released in conjunction with the CIP PIBC INFUSE 2013 conference. The special edition emerged against a backdrop of high-profile events including the ‘Idle No More’ movement, Indigenous-led protests against Bill C-45 for its environmental and social implications, and the January 2013 Federal Court decision on Métis and Non-Status Indians.
WEBSITE AND COMMUNICATIONS TOOLS
A full overhaul of the CIP website began in 2013, with a website launch scheduled for mid-2014. The new website will provide planners and external partners with enhanced ability to share information and best practices. The website will be integrated with a new association management software that will drive enhancements to CIP services. The year also marked a major foray into social media, with the creation and maintenance of a LinkedIn company page (2,000 followers in December 2013), two LinkedIn discussion groups, and a Twitter feed (@CIP_Planning).

CIP also invested in a media monitoring platform to evaluate media coverage of CIP and general planning issues, and to further facilitate the sharing of relevant planning news through CIP’s LinkedIn and Twitter accounts. All of these tools continue to improve CIP’s capacity to connect with planners.

INTERNATIONAL INITIATIVES
GLOBAL PLANNERS NETWORK (GPN)
The GPN began preparations for the seventh session of the World Urban Forum, April 5-11, 2014 in Medellin, Colombia, including the submission of a successful proposal for a session called: Urban Planning for Equity: An Agenda for Implementation. The GPN also arranged for a booth space in the exhibit hall to promote the network and its partners. CIP, the American Planning Association and the Royal Town Planning Institute committed to attending the forum and contributing to the networking session and booth.

CARIBBEAN URBAN FORUM
CIP was represented at the fourth Caribbean Urban Forum in Port of Spain, Trinidad, from March 13-15, 2013. CIP’s involvement included sharing some general remarks at the opening plenary regarding Canadian partnerships with planners in the Caribbean, and contributing to the Caribbean Planners Association (CPA) Executive/Commonwealth Association of Planners Americas meeting, the CPA Annual Meeting, and the Advisory Board meeting of the Caribbean Network for Urban Land Management. CIP also chaired a panel discussion on Planning and Climate Change in the Caribbean, presenting a draft version of the first CPA Working Paper. A number of CIP WorldLink interns provided valuable logistical support to the forum.

COMMONWEALTH ASSOCIATION OF PLANNERS
CIP is a key partner in the Commonwealth Association of Planners (CAP). Dr. Larry Wolfe, MCIP, RPP continues to represent the Canadian Institute of Planners as the Co-opt Vice-President for the Americas. CAP was one of the few civil society organizations with a voice at the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting in Sri Lanka in September 2013. CIP contributed to a discussion paper on the role of planning in the Post-2015 Development Agenda, which was presented at the meeting in Sri Lanka.

WORLD TOWN PLANNING DAY
For the fifth year in a row, CIP collaborated with a number of other planning organizations to support a ‘virtual’ World Town Planning Day conference. The conference attracted planners and other thought leaders from around the world to confront the major water-related challenges of our time: flood, drought, climate change, supply shortages and demand management issues. Several of the conference sessions also celebrated the role of waterfronts in championing urban development and economic growth and community vibrancy.

INFUSE 2013

CIP wishes to thank all the conference participants who helped make the annual conference a vibrant, successful learning experience, networking opportunity and exchange of ideas for everyone.

Several of the conference presentations remain posted on the INFUSE website for future reference.

“We are thrilled that 1,100 delegates from Canada and abroad joined us in Vancouver.”

Infuse Co-Chair

"From the sessions, to the inspiring and thought provoking messages from keynote speakers [Candy] Chang and [Mark] Kingwell, the Great Debate, the learning tours, embedded workshops, and all the cultural and social content, the positive energy at this conference was palpable."

ANDREW BAIGENT, MCIP, RPP

Infuse Co-Chair

The CIP AGM was held on July 9 at the Westin Bayshore Hotel in Vancouver. In addition to accepting the audited financial statements for 2012 and appointing auditors for 2013, outgoing CIP President Andrea Gabor, FCIP, RPP, reviewed the significant changes CIP had undergone over the previous two years, including the establishment of the Professional Standards Committee (PSC) and the Professional Standards Board (PSB) and recent review of CIP’s governance, staff structure and committee mandates. She also discussed the need to revise CIP’s by-laws to conform to the new Canada Not-for-Profit Corporations Act.

Ms. Gabor drew attention to the Institute’s new strategic plan - including such upcoming innovations as the Planning Pool, a new model of collaboration through which CIP and Affiliates can work collaboratively to pool their efforts and resources to better serve members and more effectively collaborate with stakeholders. In her remarks, Andrea offered her sincere gratitude to her fellow Council members, volunteers, staff and members for their support during her term as President. Michael Gordon MCIP, RPP, CIP’s new President from 2013 to 2015, was also introduced.
The 2013 edition of Great Places in Canada ran from May to September and announced its winners on World Town Planning Day, November 8, 2013. This new schedule allowed planners, communities and the public to nominate Great Places during the summer holidays when most places are vibrant with activities and looking their best.

Great Places in Canada supports the objectives of CIP’s Strategic Plan in raising the profile of the planning profession and the Institute. The excitement generated by the contest provided CIP with widespread bilingual media exposure, including a feature on Canada AM as well as numerous newspapers, radio stations and TV shows coast-to-coast. Substantial social media traffic on the contest was generated through the effective use of Facebook, Twitter and LinkedIn.

Five locations joined the ranks of 15 other Great Places that have been honoured since the competition began in 2010. 2013 saw 68 unique nominations and over 100,000 votes cast by Canadians. Each of the winning Great Places received a stainless steel plaque to recognize their special place.

The CIP office extends sincere thanks to the Great Places in Canada jurors for their time and effort evaluating the submissions. CIP also wishes to thank the many members, Council members and staff who fielded numerous interviews for print, radio and television media throughout the contest. The full listing of Great Places in Canada Volunteers can be found on page 18.

EXCELLENCE IN PLANNING

The Awards for Planning Excellence honour planning projects judged on their excellence, innovation, impact on the profession, implementation potential, and overall presentation. The Awards Jury has worked diligently with staff in recent years to refine the evaluation criteria and selection processes. In 2013, the jury also recommended the implementation of a nominal fee for award submissions to improve the quality of the submissions, and to cover some of the costs of the award selection process. Many thanks go to Jacklyn Nielsen, Coordinator, Member Recognition Programs at CIP, who seamlessly transferred judging processes from a paper to a web-based system. This will facilitate long-term savings for both printing and shipping costs.

These projects are deserving of recognition for their excellence in planning work, their contribution to the profession, and for showing particular strength in the category under which they won their award.

2013 INDUCTEES TO THE COLLEGE OF FELLOWS

Election as a Fellow of the Canadian Institute of Planners is given only to those members who exhibit the highest professional attainment and breadth of experience. CIP is delighted to welcome two new members to the College of Fellows in 2013:

- Lindsay Dale-Harris, FCIP, RPP (Ontario)
- Jagdev Singh (Jag) Dhillon, FCIP, RPP, AICP (British Columbia)

2013 VISION IN PLANNING AWARDS

The 2013 Vision in Planning award was awarded to the Kitimat Master Plan, developed in 1952 for the community of Kitimat on British Columbia’s north coast by Clarence Stein, who was engaged by Alcan Aluminum to develop the town essentially from scratch. Stein’s ground-breaking design kept industry well-separated from town, and included substantial green space and room for expansion.

2013 PRESIDENT’S AWARD

This year’s recipient is Gordon Price, Director of the renowned City Program at Simon Fraser University in Vancouver. Gordon is also an accomplished local civic leader who completed his sixth term as a Vancouver City Councillor in 2002. He also served on the Board of the Greater Vancouver Regional District and was appointed to the first board of TransLink, the Greater Vancouver Transportation Authority, when it was established in 1999.

2013 PRESIDENT’S AWARD FOR YOUNG PLANNERS

CIP recognized David Cooper, MCIP, RPP with the award in 2013. As Senior Transit Planner at Calgary Transit, David has been a key member in several planning projects, including the planning and implementation of two bus rapid transit services and the launch of Calgary’s first regional transit service.

2013 STUDENT SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

- CIP President’s Scholarship: Marena Brinkhurst, Simon Fraser University, Master of Planning “Community Land-Use Planning of First Nations Reserve and the Influence of Land Tenure: A Case Study with the Penticton Indian Band”
- Thomas Adam – Past President Scholarship: Nicholas Danford, Queen’s University, Master of Urban and Regional Planning Program “Bylaws and Brothels: An Analysis of Toronto’s Adult Entertainment Governance Strategy”
- Horace Seymour – Past President Scholarship: Teresa Rittemann, Ryerson University, Master of Urban Planning “Playfully Green Futures: A PlayScape Planning Handbook”
- Humphrey Carver – Past President Scholarship: Hillary Morgan, Queen’s University, Master of Urban and Regional Planning Program “Working Towards Sustainability: Assessing the Land Use Needs of Light Industry in a Changing Economy”
- The Dillon Consulting Limited Scholarship: Jonathan Pradinuk, Queen’s University, Master of Urban and Regional Planning Program “The Implementation of Intensification Corridors: Exploring the Redevelopment Potential of Vancouver’s Neighbourhood Shopping Streets”
- Vancouver Scholarship for Excellence & Leadership in Sustainable Planning: Jonathan Pradinuk, Queen’s University, Master of Urban & Regional Planning “The Implementation of Intensification Corridors: Exploring the Redevelopment Potential of Vancouver’s Neighbourhood Shopping Streets”

Since I started on the CIP National Awards Jury in 2006, I have enjoyed working with planners from across the country, as well as having had the opportunity every year to review some really terrific projects, that continue to raise the bar for innovation and quality in our profession.”
